NOOSA PROPERTY MARKET REPORT

Financial Year 2022 - 2023

SUNSHINE BEACH

Financial Year 2022-2023 in Review

The past three months have certainly been a challenging market to navigate for both buyers and sellers, but the good news is the future is looking brighter as the underlying drivers and strong migration start to take effect again. Early indications are that the market may have bottomed out, and we can expect to start to see growth return, with pent-up demand at the top end of the market.

There are plenty of buyers waiting to pounce in the prestige sector, and these buyers are typically largely immune to the higher interest rate environment.

Adrian Reed

Looking back at the last quarter of the financial year, never before have I seen such a delicate market in Noosa, where there are so many factors at play. On the one hand, there has been a lack of flagship sales, which is often an indicator of market conditions in this region.

That has largely been due to a lack of quality stock and seller reluctance to test the market, not the appetite for buyers to act if the right property is available.

Saying that, we have still seen some strong sales results during the quarter, including a record-breaking sale for Designer Chris Clout's incredible home at 46 Driftwood Drive, Castaways Beach fetching $13,300,000 when it changed hands in May and a renovated Paul Clout designed house at 17 The Promontory, Noosa Waters, for $6,830,000, setting a street record in one of the states most expensive streets. Other sales of note include an original late 1980's Noosa Sound water-front home at 9 Wyuna Drive for $6,000,000; and a sprawling Noosa River residence at 16 Wygani Drive, Noosa North Shore, selling for $5,500,000.

New homes or properties that have been renovated at the prestige end of the market are still performing well, however, there's a reluctance for buyers to act on properties that need to be renovated, with buyers acutely aware of the rising building costs, labour shortages, and supply chain issues.

CoreLogic's latest June figures show the overall pulse of the market is 'decelerating' despite prices rising for a fourth straight month. CoreLogic's research director Tim Lawless says conditions are in place for a 'double dip' in property prices. He expects the upper end of the market – where downsizers and new overseas buyers are not sensitive to rate rises – will continue to perform well, with any future drop in prices to be felt most acutely at the middle and lower end of the market.

The latest June quarter home values data from PropTrack revealed units in Noosa performed better than houses over the three months to June 30. In Tewantin, the median unit price rose 15% to $918,723, followed by Noosaville, which rose 10% in the June quarter to just over $1,000,000.

House prices across the Noosa Shire only made minimal gains over the quarter. The median house price in Noosa Heads gained 1.7% to sit at $2,200,000, but it is still down 6% compared to 12 months ago. In Noosaville, the median house price is not far behind at $1,960,000, having grown 1.5% in the quarter, but is still 7% below this time a year ago.

With so many layers to navigate, it has never been more important to have a trusted advisor you can turn to for help to make informed decisions and have a clear understanding of the market.

The past twelve months have seen some amazing sales results in Sunshine Beach, one of QLD's most exclusive beachside suburbs.

Alexander Payne

The median house price for Sunshine Beach, like everywhere, has come down from the 'heady' days of COVID. We have to remember the median sales price is a rolling average based on 12 months.

To compare last year's median to this year's would suggest that the market has come down 30% or more; this simply is not the case. Sunshine Beach is tightly held; only 32 houses and 35 units sold in the last 12 months. In addition, FY21/22 included several record sales that makes the year-to-year comparison seem bleak. It's most certainly not.

There was uncertainty regarding interest rate rises and recession, we did indeed see a reduction in the amount that properties were fetching at sale, however it is more around the 10% mark compared to the median.

Balancing vendor expectations against the buyer's value equation has been challenging. None of us like to think our properties have decreased in value, but we need to remember the incredible increases we experienced in the previous financial year.

Houses

In FY22/23 32 houses sold in Sunshine Beach. 12 sold for more than $4,000,000 totalling $85,900,000, the highest being 22 Arakoon Crescent at $20,000,000. Total house sales in Sunshine Beach came to $138,930,000. The average price for the 32 sold was $4,230,000, a much higher figure than the median at $2,440,000. Days on market is at 67.

There are more houses in the sub $2,500,000 category coming to market. 50% of the sales in the last 12 months were in the $2,500,000 or less bracket. A substantially higher proportion of the properties coming to market recently have been in this category, and this may be reflective of mortgage stress.

Units

Sunshine Beach units are now at a median value of $1,500,000 having only experienced a slight decrease of 0.8% over the past 12 months. 35 unit sales were recorded in the last 12 months. The highest was 2/38 Park Crescent at $5,200,000. (Remember 'units' are anything that is not a stand-alone house).

Units are selling well with an average of 44 days on market. Over the 35 sales in FY22/23, the average was $1,643,085. 21 of the Units sold for under $1,500,000, which may also have been an indicator of mortgage stress.

It seems buyers and investors, despite the economic changes, see Sunshine Beach as a solid area to invest or owner occupy.

Reed & Community Charity Gala

The 2023 Charity Gala, held at the Sofitel Noosa Pacific Resort on Saturday, 17th June, in support of the LOYAL Foundation and the Humpty Dumpty Foundation was a resounding success.

The event raised over $275,000 acquiring 22 pieces of vital paediatric medical equipment across 11 local and regional hospitals in Queensland, New South Wales, the Northern Territory, and the New South Wales Ambulance service.

Since opening in 2018, Reed & Co. Estate Agents can proudly say that together with the Noosa community, they have now raised $1,006,964 and donated 83 pieces of life-saving paediatric medical equipment to regional hospitals on the Sunshine Coast and beyond.

Paul Francis OAM, Founder and Executive Chairman of the Humpty Dumpty Foundation, expressed gratitude to the generous donors who make a tangible difference in hospitals and healthcare services throughout Australia. He highlighted the urgency of providing necessary equipment to hospitals, emphasising the challenges faced by medical professionals when critical resources are lacking.

Loyal Foundation Founder, Anthony Bell OAM commended the Humpty Dumpty Foundation's commitment to ensuring that 100 cents to the dollar donated goes directly towards providing urgently needed medical equipment to hospitals or health services.

Adrian Reed expressed his pride in the community's support and emphasised the continuous effort to improve outcomes for sick children. "It's tough, but children don't stop getting sick, they don't stop going to the hospital, and tragically, they don't stop dying."

This is our chance to step up, have an impact, and change the outcome for some young lives. It's our legacy, and our legacy is our generosity.

Adrian Reed

The glamorous evening saw 150 elegantly dressed guests, including notable figures such as Dawn Fraser AC MBE, Alan Jones AO, and Humpty Dumpty Foundation Founder and Executive Chairman Paul Francis OAM, walk the red carpet, creating a Hollywood-style atmosphere. Master of Ceremonies Larry Emdur set the tone, declaring the intention to change lives and save lives throughout the night.

Guests were inspired by speeches from Dr. Lizelle Weber, Director of Neonatology at Sunshine Coast University Hospital and Health Service (Queensland Health), and Dr. Karl van der Merwe (FACEM), Director of the Emergency Department at Noosa Hospital. These medical experts shared insights into the transformative impact the equipment donated from previous Reed & Co. Charity Galas is having, providing an emotional insight as to why everyone was all there, to give sick children the best chance possible.

The Live Auction, hosted by Gordon McDonald of The Auction Group, featured an array of experiences and products of which a majority were generously donated by Noosa's small business community, raising $41,850. Additionally, guests contributed to the cause by purchasing specific equipment from the Humpty Dumpty Foundation's Wish List.

Adrian Reed expressed his sincere gratitude to the Reed & Co. team, major sponsor AV Partners, auction donors, and the generous guests for their overwhelming support. "The generosity of this community just blows me away," he remarked.
